Being clear on representation is one of the most important pieces of any sale of real estate. REALTORS® assume a position of trust with buyers and sellers when entering into an agency relationship. Managing this risk is a necessity for all licensees.

In this course, you will discuss some of the most common and unwise vernacular errors that occur with the listing and the buyer representation agreement. Understanding that each broker sets policies, we will explore the most significant litigation issues impacting real estate to develop sound business practices and minimize legal liability.
